

Santa Cruz Mountains Wineries and Back Roads Tour – Saturday, September 5th

Those of you who infrequently drive Highway 17 between Los Gatos and Santa Cruz often pass a series of non-descript turn-offs with names like Laurel Road and Glenwood Drive, Vine Hill, Branciforte Creek and Granite Creek Roads. For the adventurous among you, the true “collectors of backcountry roads”, our morning offers an excursion into the sun-dappled past where the roads trace two turns of the century and the marks of a railroad that traversed and penetrated the mountains. Our quest will be to locate the tunnel entrances still visible from the ghost towns of Laurel and Glenwood.

Of course, no true excursion into the Santa Cruz Mountains would be complete without lingering on the deck of several of the finest small-lots, by appointment wineries in California.

And what goes better with a hearty glass of Pinot Noir than your choice of excellent smoked and barbequed meats or fish. We will be picnicking on a ridge, under the shade of an old oak, overlooking Corralitos and all of the Monterey Bay. Pack a camp chair!

Participants will be asked to provide the event master with their lunch selections in advance. All selections will be prepared and delivered to the site of our lunch and second winery tasting.

Our mid-afternoon route will continue up and over Hecker Pass towards our final winery.

We will have an excellent opportunity to stage our cars along the dramatically tall palms that mark the entrance to this relaxing stop under the sycamores. Camera time again!

Of course, there is one more backcountry route to savor. Uvas and McKean Roads can assist your return to normal society with a route that roughly parallels Hwy 101.

Please bring your cameras and coolers. This promises to be a memorable outing.

Contact the event masters if you have any questions.
